

Go Fishing at Big Bone Lick State Park

Starting in 2006, 2.2 miles of Big Bone Creek in Big Bone Lick State Park will be stocked by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources with 1,000 rainbow trout each month in April and May. An additional 1,000 rainbow trout will be stocked in early October each year, starting in 2006, to create a seasonal catch-and-release trout fishery from October 1 through March 31. During this period, all anglers must fish with artificial baits and immediately return all trout to the stream. The lower section of Big Bone Creek in the park also offers fishing for largemouth bass, spotted (Kentucky) bass, and panfish.

Big Bone Creek Boat Ramp is only 2 miles south of the park off Hwy 1925. Anglers can access the backwater area of Big Bone Creek and the Ohio River from this ramp. The backwater area provides good fishing for largemouth bass, crappie, bluegill, and channel catfish.

A 7.5-acre lake provides fishing for largemouth bass, bluegill, and channel catfish in Big Bone Lick State Park. A campground is located next to the lake for those wanting to plan an overnight fishing trip.
